

Almost entirely forgotten today, the Scotsman David Pae (1828-84), evangelical controversialist and founding editor of the People's Friend, was undoubtedly one of the most widely read novelists in mid-Victorian Britain. Over fifty of his sensational serial stories were syndicated in a wide range of cheap weekly newspapers throughout Scotland and the English provinces from the mid-1850s. Of these the most popular was Lucy, the Factory Girl, which first appeared in the Edinburgh newspaper The North Britain in 1858-9. Now republished for the first time for over a century, it should prove fascinating reading for all students of Victorian literary, social, and publishing history.

LUCY, THE FACTORY GIRL; OR, THE SECRETS OF THE TONTINE CLOSE

BY

DAVID PAE

Edited by Graham Law, Professor in English Studies, Waseda University

'Lucy, the Factory Girl includes a substantial element of fantasy and wish fulfillment . . . it is an urban fairy-tale with echoes of Cinderella and Ali Baba, but . . . the main intention is deadly serious. The novel delivers an unrelenting attack on the commercial ethos, the devouring materialism which the author saw as threatening to engulf Scotland.'

William Donaldson, Popular Literature in Victorian Scotland (1986)

'William Black, James Payn, Walter Besant, and even Miss Braddon . . . cannot hold up a candle to David Pae.'

Jesse Quail, editor of the Northern Daily Telegraph, in 1886

'Outstanding among the newspaper novelists Law has momentarily resurrected is the tireless Scotsman David Pae'

Richard Altick, Review of Graham Law Serializing Fiction in the Victorian Press, TLS, 9 February 2001

- This edition of Lucy, the Factory Girl is limited to 350 copies
- Hardback with an introduction, text of the novel of 350pp., explanatory notes, and illustrated appendices containing biographical, bibliographical, and contextual material
- ISBN 1-902580-13-3
- Price £25.00 post free in the U.K.
- Price $50 post free surface mail to U.S.A., airmail at cost. Cheques accepted in any currency at no extra charge.
- Available from November 2001.

THE SENSATION PRESS

116 Sedlescombe Road North, Hastings, East Sussex TN37 7EN, United Kingdom

Tel/fax (0)1424 423780 / e-mail: sensationbooks@hotmail.com

www.chriswillis.freeseve.co.uk/senpress.htm

Recent Titles from
THE SENSATION PRESS

116 Sedlescombe Road North, Hastings, East Sussex TN37 7EN, United Kingdom

Tel/fax (0)1424 423780 / e-mail: sensationbooks@hotmail.com

www.chriswillis.freemove.co.uk/senpress.htm

THE LITERARY LIVES OF MARY
ELIZABETH BRADDON
A STUDY OF HER LIFE AND WORK

By Jennifer Carnell

This is the first new literary critical biography of Mary Elizabeth Braddon for over 20 years.

Hardback with text of 448pp. and 6 illustrations.

ISBN 1 902580 02 8 £39.99

THE BLACK BAND; OR, THE MYSTERIES OF MIDNIGHT

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

Edited with an introduction by Jennifer Carnell
Hardback, with a 25pp. introduction, 605pp. of text, 6pp. of explanatory notes and 44 illustrations reproduced from the serialisation.

ISBN 1 902580 00 1 £45

THE OCTOROON; OR, THE LILY OF LOUISIANA

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

Edited with an introduction by Jennifer Carnell
The Octoroon (1861-1862) is a lurid tale of race, slavery and crime. It was the second anonymous novel written by Braddon for the lower class magazine the Halfpenny Journal

Hardback with an introduction, text of 211pp. and 18 illustrations reproduced from the original serialisation.

ISBN 1 902580 04 4 £19.99

DROSS; OR, THE ROOT OF EVIL AND MARJORIE DAW

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

Dross; Or, The Root of Evil is a three act comedy about the dangers of sudden wealth, based on a story by American author Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

Paperback ISBN 1 902580 05 2 £12

CUT BY THE COUNTY

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

Published in 1886, Cut By the County shows the progression from sensation to detective fiction.

Paperback ISBN 1 902580 11 7 £15

HIS DARLING SIN

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

His Darling Sin (1899) features Braddon's most prominent professional detective, John Faunce. Critics and biographers have noted that the detective fiction loving policeman bears a marked resemblance to Wilkie Collin's Cuff from The Moonstone (1868).

Paperback ISBN 1 902580 12 5 £15

DEAD LOVE HAS CHAINS

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

Written when Braddon was in her seventies, Dead Love has Chains is one of Braddon's most daring works, and certainly one of her most interesting late novels.

Paperback ISBN 1 902580 10 9 £15

CIRCE

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

Edited with an introduction by Gabrielle Malcolm
Reprinted unabridged from the scarce two volume edition published by Ward, Lock & Tyler in 1867. This edition also includes a selection of contemporary newspaper articles about the controversy it aroused.

ISBN 1 902580 08 7 Hardback £35.

THE CHRISTMAS HIRELINGS

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

Edited with an Introduction by Katherine Mattacks

ISBN 1 902580 15 X Paperback £15

ONE FATAL MOMENT AND OTHER STORIES

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

Edited with an Introduction by Jennifer Carnell

ISBN 1 902580 14 1 Paperback £15

THE FATAL MARRIAGE
AND OTHER STORIES

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

Edited with an introduction by Chris Willis
This book brings together previously unknown and uncollected novellas and stories, written by Braddon for some of the most ephemeral magazines and newspapers of the period.

ISBN 1 902580 06 0 Hardback £35

THE MISSING WITNESS AN ORIGINAL DRAMA IN FOUR ACTS

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

Written in 1874, The Missing Witness was performed as Genevieve in Liverpool at the Royal Alexandra Theatre. This edition has been reprinted unabridged from the edition published by John and Robert Maxwell in 1880, and includes articles and reviews on the Liverpool production.

Paperback ISBN 1 902580 07 9 Price £12

MARRIED BENEATH HIM A COMEDY IN FOUR ACTS

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

A modern society comedy first published in 1882. This volume includes Braddon's essay, 'Fifty Years of the Lyceum Theatre.'

Paperback ISBN 1 902580 01 X £12

LUCY THE FACTORY GIRL

By David Pae

Edited and With an Introduction by Graham Law

ISBN 1 902580 13 3 Hardback £25

FORTHCOMING
THE WHITE PHANTOM

By Mary Elizabeth Braddon

ISBN 1 902580 09 5 Hardback £45